NAZIS QUICKEN PACE OF RAIDS OVER CHANNEL

NEW DANGER SIGNALS APPEAR IN FAR EAST

By the Associated Press
London, March 10.—The scream of sirens warned of Nazi raiders over London in mid-morning today after the heaviest week end of air attacks since the fire bomb raids of last Dec. 29.

The all clear came in half an hour, however, without any reports of damage or casualties.

The sun broke through high clouds over the Strait of Dover.

Some Londoners regarded the quickened pace of the raids, concentrated on Britain's capital for two successive nights, as signaling the start of long-predicted full force spring air siege.

The capital had three alarms last night—one starting shortly before midnight and lasting four hours, and two short alarms after midnight.

One daylight raid machine-gunned the streets of an east coast town, then was driven off by anti-aircraft fire from a ship it attempted to attack off the coast.

Rescue crews dug into the bomb-stricken debris of a three-story London building, looking for two fire watchers believed on the roof when the bomb hit.

Another explosive damaged a theatre last night. Four policemen were killed in a hit on a station house. Another building was destroyed but 150 persons, mostly women and children, escaped unhurt from a shelter in the basement.

Sections along the south coast also were bombed and the roar of planes was heard overhead at scores of communities from north-eastern Scotland to South Wales.

In many of these places, as at Liverpool which had its longest alarm in two months, there were no reports of bombings. Liverpool's anti-aircraft barrage was credited with beating back raiders there.

Washington, March 10.—(P)—Members of the House military committee expressed belief today that National Guard units now on active duty would be held in service beyond the 12-month originally planned, if the international situation continued to be critical.

The year of service will be up in September for some guard units but Representative Andrews (R-NY), senior minority member of the committee, asked "if the situation is as critical in August or September as at present, would they send the guard home?"

Chairman May (D-Ky) said, however, he had received no request from General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, or anyone else in the War Department for legislation to extend the guard's service.

Approximately 25 men were trapped when the roof of a 30-year-old Strand Theatre Caves In With a Terrible Roar

Brockton, Mass., March 10.—(P)—Twelve firemen were killed and 16 injured early today when the snow-laden roof of the 30-year-old Strand theatre collapsed during a fire which destroyed the building.

Firemen and police, poking through the smouldering mass of metal, wood and plaster uncovered 12 bodies by 9 a. m. and continued searching.

The known dead were: Captain John F. Carroll, 52; William Murphy, 25; Daniel O'Brien, 45; Henry Sullivan, 45; Malcolm McNeil, 40; Matthew Geary, 48; Lieutenant Raymond A. Mitchell, Dennis Murphy, Roy H. Keraghan, George Collins, Fred Kelley and Martin Lipper.

Approximately 25 men were trapped when the roof of the theatre balcony caved in with a terrific roar. Most were released quickly and given emergency hospital treatment, but two bodies were carried out along with the living.

The bodies of five were not freed from the debris until daylight, five hours after the fire was discovered. Hundreds of Sunday night movie goers had left the theatre less than two hours before the fire took hold.

Trapped firemen screamed as flames licked at their hands and faces while they were caught in the debris.

Most of those trapped were in the theatre balcony, part of which collapsed under the weight of the snow-laden roof. Several were carried through the balcony floor, where rescuers hurriedly pulled away theatre seats, ceiling plaster and roof timbers to free them.

An eye-witness, Cornelius T. Lyons, a Brockton Enterprise reporter, who was standing on the stage of the burning theatre when the roof collapsed, said that two (Turn to Page Six)

GREENE COUNTY "FAKE" HOLDUP TRIAL LAUNCHED

Selection of a Jury Is Started Today at Waynesburg In Case Of Gas Field Worker Charged With Conspiring Wife's Murder

Waynesburg, March 10.—(P)—Selection of a jury was started today in the trial of Robert Headley, 49-year-old gas field worker, charged with conspiracy to murder his 44-year-old wife so that he could marry another woman.

Greene County District Attorney A. M. Nichols accused Headley of plotting with two sisters, Mrs. Otis Cumberland and Mrs. Elizabeth Pettit, to kill Mrs. Headley in a "fake" holdup near the Headleys' home in Pine Bank last August 14. Nichols claimed Headley wanted to marry Mrs. Cumberland, 36-year-old widow and mother of two children.

In questioning prospective jurors, defense attorneys asked them whether they would place more weight in the testimony of a man or of a woman, indicating the women might be called in Headley's trial.

Headley, dressed neatly in a brown suit, sat with his counsel and did not look up as Mrs. Cumberland and Mrs. Pettit, clad alike in green dresses and hair ribbons, entered the courtroom. Mrs. Cumberland, however, glanced at him.

Nichols said the sisters, disguised in men's clothing, staged the "fake holdup" in which Mrs. Headley was shot five times. Mrs. Pettit later admitted she was the "trigging woman," Nichols reported.

Mrs. Headley recovered from her wounds but died last January 18 after, investigators said, she had (Turn to Page Nine)

FRANCE IS IRKED BY BLOCKADE

Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan Informs American Press Representatives That Ships Will Be Convoyed If British Continue to Shut Off Needed Food Supplies; London Intimates Challenge Will Not Alter Practice

18,348,300 BUSHELS OF WHEAT NEEDED

Vichy, France, March 10.—(P)—Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan informed American press representatives today that French ships would be convoyed if the British blockade of France continued.

Darlan, who with Chief of State Marshal Philippe Petain and Secretary of Food Supply Jean Achard called the press conference, declared:

"If the British continue this blockade, which I consider incredible, I will be obliged to ask permission to provide arms and protection for our merchantmen. I will let nothing stand in the way of the French people's eating."

"The Germans are more generous and more comprehensive of the needs of humanity than the English," he continued.

Petain said the Germans had released 2,000,000 quintals (220,400 tons) of wheat out of 2,700,000 which had been requisitioned for the German army.

Darlan said he considered the blockade against Germany useless and declared he had told to U. S. Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy last night.

A few boatloads of wheat will not affect the outcome of the war, he said.

Achard read a prepared statement in which he said 5,000,000 quintals (18,348,300 bushels) of (Turn to Page Nine)

CAUCUSES WILL TAKE UP BROWN RESIGNATION

Controversy Between Governor and Former Commerce Heads Mounting Stack of Problems For Legislators Starting Ninth Week

NUMEROUS HEARINGS

Harrisburg, March 10.—Caucuses of both parties today took up requests for an investigation of the resignation of Commerce Secretary Richard P. Brown, as the assembly entered its ninth week with a mounting stack of legislative problems, at least four of which were scheduled for immediate attention.

The four top issues were those dealing with defense, farmers, teachers and liquor control.

Brown's statement when he quit the "baby" cabinet post of secretary of commerce were quickly seized by Democrats in both House and Senate.

The caucuses were expected to decide by tonight whether to pursue the inquiry.

Representative Leo A. Achterman of Monroe, the Democratic floor leader, said the Democratic-controlled house rules committee would meet during the day "to decide what to do."

Asked about reports that Col. Estes might be summoned, Achterman said he hadn't heard about that.

As for the legislative problems, the Senate took over from the House measures to create an 11-member state defense council, coordinating preparedness efforts, and modernizing the already authorized "home guard."

Another bill in the same position, but certain to stir more oratory if it ever reaches the Senate floor, is one to establish a uniform in-

Clumsily Abandoned Blood-Stained Weapons Of Death Guide Kansas City Police In Search For Murderer Of Prominent Socialite

FOUND BY HER MOTHER

Kansas City, March 10.—(P)—Clumsily abandoned, blood-stained weapons of death guided police today in the search for the killer who heat pretty Miss Lella Adele Welsh, 24, with a stone mason's hammer, slashed her with a butcher knife and fled with a deeply cut section of her hip.

The body of the socially prominent brunette, her pajamas in shreds, was found in her bedroom yesterday morning by her mother, Mrs. Marie P. Welsh, who went to awaken the daughter to attend church.

Miss Welsh, a 1937 beauty contestant at the University of Kansas City, had been slain during the night by a person who apparently entered through a bedroom window of the Welsh home at 6109 Rockhill road, in a well-to-do section. Her head had been fractured in several places and her throat severely slashed.

The hammer was left at the foot of the bed. The knife's seven-inch blade was sticking in earth outside the open window. There were mud tracks on the window sill. Tucked in a neck wound was a man's shirt, minus its collar.

In the backyard of a home 100 yards away, police found the missing section of flesh. There, too, was a pair of blood-stained cotton gloves.

Police laboratory tests showed that Miss Welsh, granddaughter of a pioneer Kansas City real estate man, had not been criminally assaulted. A close check of valuable discounts robbery as the motive.

Miss Welsh, escorted by Richard W. Funk, an oil company employee whom she had been dating for five years, returned home at 1:30 a. m. Sunday. They had attended a circus sponsored by the police and had stopped later at a cocktail lounge.

After Funk left, she talked a few minutes to her mother, then tip-toed past her brother, George, asleep on the living room davenport, to her bedroom at the rear of the house. Shortly afterward, the mother heard a thud which she thought was caused by the son falling off the davenport. She investigated and found him asleep.

Mrs. Welsh told police she was up and around the house several times during the night but heard nothing further.

Pittsburgh, March 10.—(P)—CIO President Philip Murray turned his attention today to a new union wage problem—that of the United Mine Workers in soft coal fields after instructing SWOC regional directors to arrange for negotiations on a proposed wage agreement with "big steel."

Murray joined UMW officials in New York today in informal discussion of demands to be presented to bituminous mine operators, whose contract with the union expires April 1.

The existing contract, covering some 450,000 miners, provides a 35-hour week, a $6 daily wage in the north and $5.60 in the south.

Decision to seek a new contract with U. S. Steel Corporation subsidiaries was reached at a conference (Turn to Page Nine)

THIRD TRIAL STARTS IN WASHINGTON CO.

Washington, Pa., March 10.—(P)—A jury panel was summoned to Washington county court today for start of the third of a series of trials growing out of a grand jury investigation of "rackets" in the county.

Special Prosecutor Ralph W. Peacock said he would call for trial "all cases based on gambling charges." He declined further comment.

Former District Attorney James C. Bane, former County Detectives Michael J. Powell and William McGee, and Albert D. Phillips, of Kansas City, had been indicted on charges of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws.

In the two previous trials, the three former county officials were acquitted of charges of misconduct in office and of embezzling about $1,200 which had been seized in lottery and slot machine arrests.

Asked about the possibility of a freddie chat, Peacock merely reiterated that he did not know what form would be used.

Only House approval of relatively minor amendments inserted by the Senate before it passed the legislation 60 to 31 Saturday night was needed to speed the momentous measure to the White House.

Speaker Rayburn and Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House of Representatives committee predicted the approval would be given Tuesday.

Unless the House leadership runs into an unforeseen snag, the bill therefore will be ready for President Roosevelt's signature by mid-week.

Once it is signed into law the president is expected to make swift use of the authority thus gained to "sell, transfer, title to, exchange, lease, lend or otherwise dispose of" guns, planes, ships, tanks and all other armaments and food supplies.

Only Approval of Relatively Minor Amendments Inserted By Senate Before That Body Passed Legislation by Vote of 60 to 31 Saturday, is Needed to Speed Momentous Measure to White House for Signature

Washington, March 10.—(P)—A prompt presidential request for funds to speed aid to Britain under the lend-lease program was forecast at the White House today by legislative leaders.

After conferring with President Roosevelt, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, and Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn said:

"The president probably on Wednesday, if the bill is signed tomorrow night, will send up some estimates. They will be for cash and contract authorization."

Rayburn said that the amounts to be included were discussed with the president but that he could say nothing about them.

The congressional leaders said that the bill, as passed by the Senate Saturday night, would be called up in the House tomorrow for final approval and sent to the White House by nightfall.

This procedure was agreed to unanimously shortly after the House convened. It was agreed on the motion of Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn) that after two hours of debate, a vote will be taken tomorrow on agreeing to all of the Senate amendments.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary told reporters that he thought Mr. Roosevelt would sign the bill, passed by the Senate late Saturday, "sometime Wednesday, unless we hit a snag not now foreseen."

He told reporters he thought the president might issue some announcement at that occasion but that he did not know what form it would take.

Asked about the possibility of a freddie chat, Early merely reiterated that he did not know what form would be used.

Germany Corners Europe's Coal Supply

Feature Service
BERLIN—The occupying Poland, Holland, Belgium and northern France, Germany has become a dominating possessor of one of the most essential raw products—coal.

The Nazi press estimates the country's present supply at 483,344,000 tons of hard coal, or more than half of the total estimated European deposits. Lignite is estimated at 88,061,000 tons or 80 to 85 per cent of the world supply.

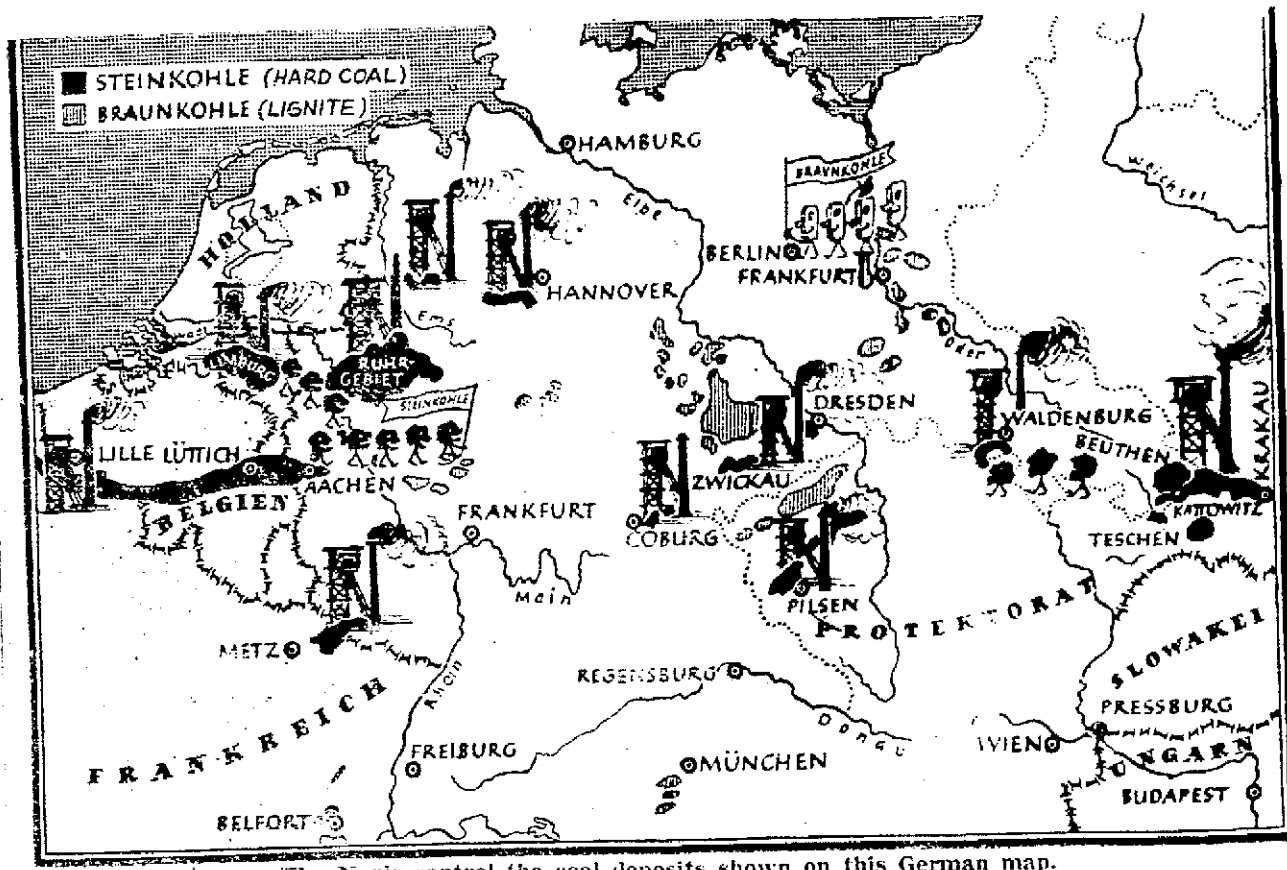

Germany's success in the war has "dethroned England as King Coal," the publication "Signal" commented recently, reporting: "For the last few years the German iron industry has increased its steel production to a point where it surpasses by 50 per cent the steel production of England and France combined."

"Now Germany's economic sphere has also come to the fore as far as coal production is concerned. Next to Germany and its occupied territories there is no noteworthy coal producer on the European continent."

Coal mining areas which fell to Germany were the Polish enterprises of East Upper Silesia, Krakow and Olsa, with a combined annual output of more than 50,000,000 tons; Holland workings producing 14,000,000 tons annually, and Belgian mines with an annual yield of about 30,000,000 tons.

Occupied France contains mines which will produce upwards of 30,000,000 tons of coal for German disposal during the remainder of the war.

Total Nazi output during 1940 recently was placed by Reichsmarschal Goering at 500,000,000 tons "or half the world production." He pointed out the vast new deposits now under German control also constitute an unlimited reserve of raw materials for the production of synthetic gasoline, oil, artificial fiber, fats and buna rubber.

"AMONG GREATEST CONQUESTS"

HERR HITLER can list as among the greatest of his conquests the acquisition of more than half Europe's known coal deposits.

Lacking this coal he would be a beaten man, for from it he is getting the synthetic gasoline needed to run his warplanes, tanks and other ground machines.

This treasure of black diamonds also will give him vastly increased politico-economic power and wealth—if he is able to hang on to it. Out of the coal comes a long list of ersatz (synthetic) products, ranging from fats and silken fibers to gasoline and rubber. But that's only half the story.

The hearths of Europe, and the furnaces of industry, are kept alight almost wholly by coal, without it some countries would all but perish.

Have you forgotten that Signor Mussolini early in the war was for a time believed about to cast his lot with England—because Italy is dependent on imports for her coal and was in desperate straits as the result of being cut off from supplies by the British blockade?

Other countries are in a similar position. Therein lies the politico-economic power which rests in Hitler's fields of coal.

OPEN HOUSE OF DAVIDSON STORE ATTRACTS MANY

Despite intermittent snow flurries, a steady flow of people took advantage of Davidson's "open house" Saturday to greet them in their new location.

In their spacious, well lighted show windows, new spring styles in coats, dresses, and accessories were attractively displayed. Additional spring atmosphere was created by the beautiful bouquets of spring flowers in the wall recesses of either window.

Upon entering the store, one was impressed by the bright cheerful appearance of the mahogany finished fixtures against a background of light buff walls and harmonizing floor coverings. The lighting of the store is the latest type fluorescent which has the appearance of warm sunlight and does much toward making the room most pleasant.

Congratulations and best wishes in the form of large baskets of flowers from manufacturing sources and new neighbors were on display lending a June in January warmth at this time of the year.

After twenty-nine years of serving the public of Warren and surrounding communities, Davidson's has taken a step forward and in these times makes a new expression of confidence in our community.

Hollywood Sights & Sound

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—It's all in the point of view.

There's the pretty young secretary who went east after four years in the bedlam of a movie studio, to take a job in an aircraft production plant.

Within a month she returned, with relief, to her old familiar haunts.

"You know," she remarked happily, "that's such a crazy business I could never get used to it!"

You'll like "Scattergood Baines," at long last in the movies. Clarence Budington Kelland's old reliable fiction character is happily realized in Guy Kibbee—with a wig that makes him look more like Scattergood than like Kibbee. Kibbee, long calling "Scattergood" for himself, was Kelland's choice, too. The author sold screen rights to 107 of the stories for $100,000—and the producers acquired 940 radio scripts on the character besides, insuring a series. The first film establishes Scattergood in Cold River, shows his rise to prosperity as the village sage, his skinning of the kniffling who would do him and his neighbors out of their livelihoods. Homespun, chuckle stuff with young romance and Francis Trout, who is Scattergood's railroad pal, Pliny Pickett, to the last subtly gesture.

"ATHRYN GRAYSON" (Andy Hardy's Private Secretary) accomplishes a remarkable feat in "zing" five years between production and preview. Billed originally as 14 years old, she was acknowledged to be 19 as the production plant.

plaudits rolled in. Fourteen or 19, little Miss Grayson has the looks, pert appeal and spirit—to say nothing of her exceptional singing voice—to take her place with the top younger talents. She's from St. Louis, via Winston-Salem, N. C., where she was known as Zelma Hedrick.

Freddie Bartholomew, growing by the minute, is in "Naval Academy"—on the same lot where his contemporaries, Jane Withers and Jackie Cooper, are "growing up" in "Her First Beau." It's Jane's first loan-out—to Columbia. Funny to think of it, but Jane is the second "oldest" in point of service at 20th, having been there since October, 1934. Only Alice Faye, who signed in May of that year, tops her seniority. Slim Summerville has bought a pool hall in Oxnard—more than 20 years ago Slim worked in one, just before he found out about the "easy money" to be made being chased and taking custard pies in the movies.

EVEN Alice Faye as "Lillian Russell" didn't have a wardrobe splurge like Tyrone Power's in "Blood and Sand." The average cost of clothing for a leading man is $800 per picture. Ty's 24 costumes (including bejeweled matador outfits) will cost $23,000!

Encouragement for pin-and-string-savers: Five years ago the 20th Century-Fox wardrobe department picked up 200 "new" straw hats of the 1920 mode for $75. Well-cautioned extras are wearing them now in "The Great American Broadcast"—and the studio netted $600 renting them.

FOUR NARROWLY ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH HERE

Four persons in a Ford V-8 sedan had a narrow escape shortly after midnight Sunday morning when the car, operated by Fritz W. Dunkle, of this city, ran into a freight train on the Buffalo Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Mohawk avenue crossing.

Fortunately they were not injured seriously, although two of them, Miss Mary Rich, 24, of Pleasant township, and Edwin Seagquist, 110 Elm street, were treated at the Warren General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Miss Rich had a laceration under the chin and was not admitted to the institution, but Seagquist was hurt more extensively about the body. He was discharged yesterday.

Also in the car, in addition to the driver and those injured was Miss Marjorie Shearer, of Pleasant township.

The report stated the machine struck Train No. BF-1.

Defending Hope
MONDAY, MARCH 10, 7:30 P. M. be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you. . . . Read I Peter 3:12-17.
We need this passage says and experience says the same thing, to be very wise in our hopes and sure of their supports. Frustrated hopes, they tell us, produce sore sickness both of body and mind. There should be in our bravest hopes a margin for disappointment. Hope should be unimpairedly tenacious but always flexible in action. It must never shut its eyes to what challenges it or may postpone its realization. Wise hope counts the costs of its fulfillments, knows they must be worked out, sometimes in sore travail. It accepts correction and, if need be, recasts its expectations.

In times like ours hope needs a long perspective, a sure sense of support in the moral orders and in the future. In the name of the Hope-sues of life and history. It must justify its confidence by the verdicts of time and rest its ultimate confidence in the way and will of God. They are beyond defeat. The Christian still dares to hope.

PRAYER: O Thou, in Whom the brave and humble have always trusted, so establish us in hope that we shall neither fear nor despair. Show us Thy light and cause us so to live in it that we may pass through any valley of the shadow, confident that there are happy issues out of all our afflictions, since our hope is in Thee. In the name of the Hope-bringer. Amen.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

Chapter 30

Hugh Chase

LOVELY got a room in a quiet hotel in the East Fifties and went to wonder at how small a place New York was for every low and then on the street, or hopping, or in a restaurant, she met someone she had known during her days with Roger. One day it was Mari, and Lovely tried to pass swiftly without speaking. Mari caught her arm and held on. "I've moved to town for the winter and I'm giving a party to-night," Mari said. "House warming. Better come! I've asked Roger."

Lovely was about to refuse when she was challenged.

"To hide? You can't. The world isn't large enough. Snatch a little sophistication for yourself and face Roger. Look at Joe and me! I was mad about that big he-man once. Now I can look at him without batting an eyelash."

But Lovely knew she could never feel that way about Roger because she'd been playing for keeps with him. She said:

"You were only fooling Joe all along. You nearly made a bum of him."

"Who are you to talk?" demanded Mari. "Look what you did. You made a bum out of Emily. And goodness only knows how many more you'll run before you're through. You've made a good start."

"But I didn't—" Lovely started quickly to defend herself and then realized it was foolish. Mari didn't matter anyhow.

"Come to my party anyhow," Mari was saying gaily. "I like girls who can make the meat sit up and take notice."

"All right," Lovely said. "I'll be there. Thanks, Mari."

She would need a new dress. Mari's religion was dress. Besides this was to be a special occasion. She must look particularly nice: be someone to be proud of. She hesitated about her charge accounts. Roger might have closed them. Yet that wasn't like him. She really wasn't pleased with the idea of charging something to him. But there was no other way. The more she thought about the thing the lighter and happier grew her heart. She was glad she had seen Mari and that Mari had forced the issue.

Mari's apartment was silver and cerise and white horsehair. The dress that she greeted her guests in was silver and cerise. She looked, with her apartment, like a page out of a courtier's fashion book. Lovely, in turquoise with a wide jeweled girdle, moved about the smart rooms with calm assurance, never getting too far from the door.

But the thing she watched for didn't happen. As the evening wore on her smile became set. She felt that it was a fine crystal mask in danger of cracking any moment. Hugh Chase was there and manager always to be flatteringly near her. And Hugh used words as any other man would use flowers.

Lovely slipped away before the party had even threatened to slow up but she left with Hugh a promise that he might take her out for cocktails next afternoon. His marked attention had been cooling to her hurt vanity. Besides it was a gesture of defiance at Roger; but one that hurt more than it helped.

Chapter 31

Hugh's Plan

SHE was glad next day when Hugh called. He arrived laden with orchids that were as near the golden glow of her hair as he could manage.

"How sweet of you," Lovely said. Hugh was tall, tall as Roger. She had to look up to meet the eyes that gazed down at her intimately.

"Don't look up at me like that," he said. "You sabotage my resolution."

"Why be resolute?" Lovely asked with a gay note that did not ring quite true.

Hugh looked at her too earnestly.

"Mean that?" he asked seriously. "I'm afraid you're just saying that with your lips."

"You might as well just wear a pane of glass over your heart, lady. I can read everything in it through your eyes, and its all Roger Cosgrave."

"That's bad, isn't it?" Lovely tried to speak lightly.

"That depends upon what you're going to do about it."

Lovely didn't answer immediately. When she did finally it was to say in a strangled voice: "There's nothing I can do, Hugh. It's gone beyond that. It isn't my move any more. I'd go back on my knees but how can you go where you're not wanted? Especially when you're in love?"

Hugh said nothing more about it. He made a mental note of the fact that there was something he could do. He owed Roger and Lovely something. Finally he had a chance to pay that debt he had made by going up to Lovely at Grattier Hill's cottage that dawn with Emily's cousin.

"Look," he said. "I have to stay in town over tomorrow night. I'll be at a loose end in the evening. How's about going to the Diamond Horseshoe?"

"Why not? I'd have to have a better reason than I know for not going." The tension had

Chapter 32

Come Christmas

"THIS is, I suppose, what you asked me here for?" Roger demanded of Hugh. "To make a fool of me? To make a silly scene?"

Hugh was too startled to reply immediately. Roger turned to Lovely with a question: "And you? What kind of a woman are you anyway? You ask about everything under the sun but your own daughter?"

He was on his feet. "Come on Emily. We're going."

They were on their way before Lovely found the broken choked voice to say, "I didn't dare ask about her! I didn't dare! I felt as if just speaking her name would kill me. I've wanted to see her so!"

Hugh said, after they'd sipped their drinks for a space in silence: "I'm sorry, Lovely. I guess nobody can fix anyone else's life. You've got to do some things for yourself."

Lovely looked at him intently as if a new thought was taking shape in her mind.

"How much do you think he hates me, Hugh?" Lovely asked as they said an early good night.

"Only as much as he loves you," was Hugh's sincere answer.

In the living room of the big Cosgrave house that Saturday afternoon Emily found Roger blankly looking into the fire, a highball on the small table beside him.

"Have one?" he offered, rising as she entered. But Emily refused the drink.

"I've come to tell you Roger. About two weeks ago Aunt Amalia made me a proposition to travel with her this winter in Mexico. I turned it down because I wanted to stay here. Well, I've told Amalia I'd go with her. I did it this morning. We sail Monday."

"You'll have a great time, Emily."

Emily turned quickly and walked out of the room and Roger had again that definite sense of amputation. Something was being cut out of his life and there was relief at the knowledge.

Maria came in while Roger was still sitting there thinking. He mixed her a drink while he told her. Maria said, looking thoughtfully at the glass in her hand:

"I'm glad Emily's going. It'll be good for her. She's never stopped possessing you in her own mind."

Animal Cookies

IN New York, next morning

Lovely opened her eyes to the day before Christmas and felt as if the walls of her room were closing in on her with loneliness. An early knock on her door brought her face to face with Joe, standing big and awkward in his trucker's uniform.

"Joe!" Notes of gladness in her voice.

"Look honey," he said. "This is for you from me." He gave her a bunch of mistletoe tied with red ribbon, and Lovely took it, misty eyed, and held it against her cheek.

"And Ma made these," Joe continued. Lovely opened her box but had thrust into her hands and turned to him in surprise.

"But animal cookies, Joe! They're for kids."

CAPITAL GOSSIP

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—For all of us who have been sweating over federal income tax returns (and there are more of us this year than ever before), here is some consolation from the men who make the laws.

It happened in the House of Representatives the other day when the discussion had turned to taxes and appropriations, and what might be needed in the overall 1941-42 fiscal year budget in way of revenues. It was Rep. Jerome Cooper, the one-time Dyerburg, Tenn., city attorney, who paved the way when he said:

"The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Rep. Robert F. Rich) has made out his income tax, and I am sure he has had the same experience I have had. He will find that the Revenue Act of 1940 has already provided a substantial increase in taxes."

M.C. Can't Understand

IT WAS then that Congressman Rich tossed off consoling words to all who burned midnight oil trying to figure out just what he did over Uncle Sam.

He said:

"I may say that I had an income tax man make mine out because I could not understand it, and I may say further that pretty nearly every member of the Ways and Means Committee (the committee that handles the tax bills) will have to go down there and have this man make out their income tax statements because they don't understand it. May I ask the gentleman who was down there to see the income tax man to have his made out? Why every one of you have to go down there. How do you expect the people out of this country to make their taxes?"

So you see, if your income tax return was in arithmetic, and you finally filed with your fingers crossed, and are only just now emerging from the mental fog caused by trying to juggle so many figures, don't take it too hard. There are a lot of the gentlemen who made the income tax law who don't understand it any better than you do.

GIRL SCOUTS TO ENJOY PROGRAM AT YOUNGSVILLE

Youngsville, Mar. 10—There are many Girl Scout activities planned for the coming week in connection with their national birthday celebration on March 12. It began for the Youngsville girls who attended camp last year, with the camp reunion held at the Warren Y. W. C. A. on Saturday.

The Girl Scouts go about their work so quietly it is doubtful if many people realize that there are 50 girls in this community in the three different Scout groups. The organization is sponsored locally by the Business and Professional Women's club with Mrs. Paul R. Getts as general supervisor.

The younger girls under ten are called "Brownies" and meet after school each Tuesday with Jane Seekings as their leader. The Brownies number a few less than a dozen. The next group numbering 17 is made up of two patrols led by Miss Jean Sweetland and Miss Roberta Lodge assisted by Donna Homet. A memorial service conducted by Mrs. E. H. Knapp was held in memory of Mrs. Anna Davis, the first one of the new society to pass on. At least two high Fascist officials sent from government duty at Rome to the fighting line were said by Italian prisoners to have been killed or wounded in the Greek onslaught over the weekend.

That attack, following weeks of restricted activity because of unfavorable weather, was credited in Greek reports with smashing the Italian division, already once reorganized, and the crack Ferraris division. Both divisions were said to have been sent into the fighting line with orders to hold out to the last.

Captured officers in the division said Mussolini—closely guarded and unheralded—arrived behind the battle line early last week and stayed at the village of Dragoti, a few miles from Tepeleni which is 28 miles southeast of the Port of Vlorë.
